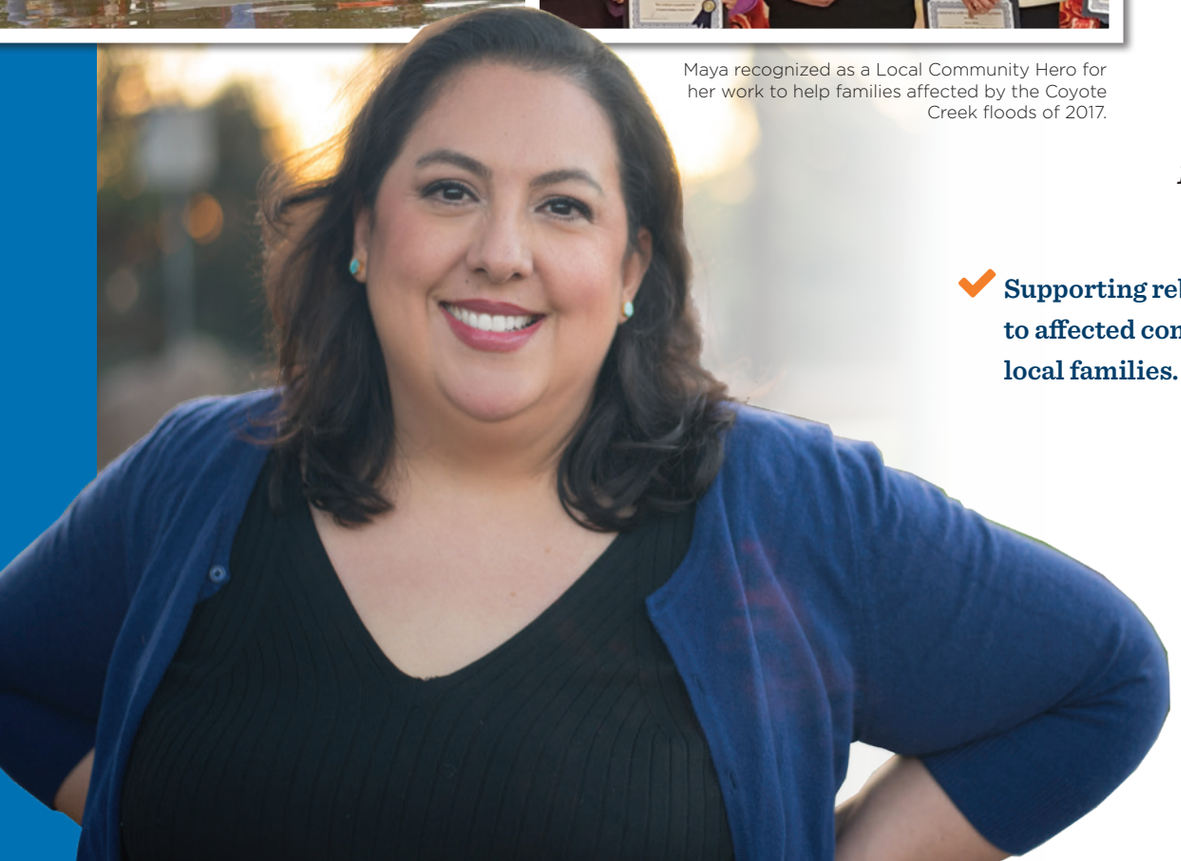
Maya recognized as a Local Community Hero for her work to help families affected by the Coyote Creek floods of 2017.



From our community.
For our community.

While the city was still assessing the damage from the floods of last winter, Maya was already at work for our community, working alongside local teachers from the Franklin-McKinley school district to bring relief to affected students and their families. As a school board member, veterans advocate, and lifelong San Jose resident, Maya understands the needs of our families and has dedicated her life to serving our community.

Now, Maya is ready to fight for us on the City Council where she will work to build a stronger San Jose for every person by:

- Supporting rebuilding efforts to affected communities and local families.
- Strengthening emergency evacuation resources and making information more accessible in different languages.
- Working to grow small business in the community and finding solutions to our housing crisis.

On June 5th, VOTE
